

The Best Sound in the World – English Dialogue List

Vinicius:

Recording number 348: sound of wet sneakers

Recording number 349: sound of a spinning coin.

Recording number 350: sound of breaking glass.

Vinicius' mother shouting in background:

Vinicius!

Voiceover:

This is Vinicius.

Vinicius:

Recording number 351: sound of my mother looking for me so she can ground me.

Voiceover:

Vinicius was fascinated by the sounds of the world.

Vinicius:

Sound of a Guinea Pig.

Voiceover:

And he loved this so much, that he decided to start a collection, that now reaches number...

Vinicius:

426: sound of a bunch of stuff in the blender:

Voiceover:

Vinicius was often confused by the way people babble so much. Vinicius didn't like to babble. He'd rather listen. And his grandma would always say "We are born with two ears and just one mouth, you see?"

Vinicius asked for presents that were a bit...different.

Vinicius:

I want a headphone set with neodymium magnets and 1000mW input power. I want a new recorder. I want the MultiTec microphone that registers sounds in a 360-degree radius. A stethoscope.

Voiceover:

Sometimes, Vinicius got the presents he wanted. And sometimes he didn't.

Vinicius' friends collected all kinds of stuff. But all Vinicius wanted was to collect sounds that surrounded him.

Every now and then, Vinicius tried to be a bit more like his friends.

Boy #1:

The game has several cards: Cosmic Dust, Garden Gnome, Giant Faun, Swamp Vampire, Black Dragon and Magic Fire.

You get the best card when you combine MagicFire with the Black Dragon card, which gives you the Fire Dragon.

Voiceover:

Vinicius didn't know exactly what a Fire Dragon was. Deep down, he was trying to figure out what kind of sound the Fire Dragon would make.

Boy #1:

...that's the best SuperCard in the whole world.

Voiceover:

Vinicius didn't really want to know what a SuperCard was.

Boy #2:

Yes! I got the Fire Dragon!

Voiceover:

And he was even less interested in what the best SuperCard in the world was. But right then and there, he had a great idea. And a very simple idea it was: to find the best sound in the world. And so, Vinicius began an extensive research.

He recorded nature sounds. Strange sounds... Gross sounds... Painful sounds... And even terribly annoying sounds...

Vinicius:

Recording number 493: sound of a mosquito that won't let me fall asleep...

Mother:

Vinicius!

Vinicius:

I'm late!

Recording number 489: the Sunday sound.

Voiceover:

But eventually, the cool sounds seemed to become rarer. Still, Vinicius didn't give up! And he even dared to go further! Well, no one said it would be easy to find the best sound in the world. But nothing, literally nothing would stand in his way!

Vinicius:

I'm going to Iceland to record the sound of the Humpback Whale.
Iceland...Humpback...Whale...

Mother:

Come back son! We're sorry!

Vinicius overhears a woman in the park say:

It felt weird at first...but then, once I heard that, it felt so good! It's the most beautiful sound I've ever heard. I'll show it to you, we recorded it. Alright then. See ya.

Woman in park:

What's that?

Vinicius:

A microphone. I heard you talking about a beautiful sound...

Woman in park:

Oh...so you were eavesdropping? I went to the doctor this morning.

Vinicius:

Are you sick?

Woman in park:

No, I'm pregnant. I went there for an ultrasound.

Vinicius:

And that's the sound you mentioned before?

Woman in park:

No...ultrasound is a medical procedure, one that allows us to see the baby...and we get to hear his heartbeat as well. That's the sound: my baby's beating heart.

But I think I'll hear something even better soon. His voice. I wonder what his voice is going to sound like...when he speaks to me...or when he laughs...

Vinicius:

Got it! Thank you!

Voiceover:

Vinicius realized that the best sound in the world was way closer than Iceland. He realized it was, in fact, more than just one sound! There were several sounds...and all of them were tied for first place.

Gramma:

I call it!

Mother:

What's this? No way, you're cheating!

Vinicius:

Recording number 538: the best sound in the world.
